PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced in the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor and lasting, with proper care for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.

It having a tight cover the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to aid housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

A Sioux Oration

A BOLD AND DEFIANT SPEECH TO GEN SULLY'S PARTY.

[Dakotah Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

The speeches made by the chiefs and leading men at the recent conferences held with Generals Sully and Parker and Father DeSmet, convey a just and comprehensive idea of the manner and stand point in and from which the present situation is regarded by their respective tribes.

As before stated all were imperious and defiant, but the following one from Iron Shell, a Minneconjou Sioux is the most characteristic, hostile and remarkable. It may not be given in the exact words of the bold speaker and warrior, but is nevertheless near enough to them to warrant the use of quotation marks.

"When the Great Father sends honest men like you into my country, I like to talk with them, and hear what they have to say, and send my word back to the Great Father. One of you I know is a man of God, and I and my people love him. You say the Great Father loves his red children, and wants to do what is right, and make them happy. In old times we were all happy, and had no trouble. We lived in peace. Why? Because honest men came to talk and hold council with us. They did not deceive us. Why did the Great Father send men out here to lie to us and deceive us if he loves us as you say he does? When white men tell the truth, and do what they promise, we love them; but when they lie to us, and tell us one thing and do another, we hate them and will fight. Since such men came among my people all has gone wrong—nothing is good and right. Even the weather is bad, when it used to be pleasant. Such men scare away our game and kill it when they do not want it. No Indian likes that. These men, when they come, do wrong things with the young squaws, and make my young men jealous. Then when they go away they do not take their children, but leave them for our people to take care of, and this no Indian likes. If the Great Father wants to stop this trouble, and have things as they used to be in old time, and live happy with his red children, he must send us honest men and men with brains to talk to. We never go into your country to trouble you, but you always come to trouble us. Why do you do this? The white men have built four roads through my country, and scared away all the game. This is one thing you always hide from me—you hide powder and shot. Why do you do this? When I see game I want to kill it to get food for my family. Game is so scarce now that I cannot kill it with my bow and arrows. I want powder and shot. I cannot live as you do. My customs are different from yours, and I cannot make myself used to them, neither can my people. We cannot live among you. Since white men come here to cheat and lie to us, I am ashamed to go to a white man's house, or to have a white man come to see me. The soldiers have made trouble too. If the Great Father will take away the soldiers, and leave us the traders we want, we shall all be happy, and the weather will come good again. We will not live where you want us to, we will stay here. I and my people may as well die fighting for what is ours as to go away from our country and starve. We are going to fight and get all the scalps we can if the Great Father does not take his soldiers away and give us our country. My people are watching me. If I go back smiling and happy, they will be smiling and happy, too, but if I go back dissatisfied, they will be dissatisfied, too. This is all I have to say to the Great Father."

THE MAINE ELECTION.—The following dispatch, dated Augusta, Maine, September 9th, gives the issue on the late canvass in that State, which was local, rather than national:

The annual election for Governor, members of the Legislature, and county officers, took place in this State to day. The contest was marked by considerable excitement, and a heavier vote was polled than was expected. The Democrats, as will be seen by the result, made a most desperate effort to carry the State, leaving no stone unturned, and urging every appliance to achieve success. Local issues, with other questions not of a political character, caused the Democrats to rally and make such gains as they have on certain localities. The Prohibitory and Constabulary laws enacted last winter caused a division in the Republican ranks, and the liquor question was seized as an issue by the Democrats and their ally the "P. L. L." organization, who run candidates for the Legislature pledged for the repeal of these enactments. The Democrats practically waived all discussion of national issues, and pressed the Republicans for all localities on the somewhat aggravating points presented by the extreme legislation of last winter on the liquor question. The result is, therefore, in no degree an expression of popular change in Maine touching the measures of the National Administration or the merits of Andrew Johnson. The issues were purely local, and the result has no significance beyond the fact that a large section of the Republican party do not believe in a radical prohibitory law.

THINGS IN NEW YORK.—George Alfred Townsend, writing to the Troy Times says:

There are twenty six ferries from New York to its subsidiary cities, with eight steamboats, six teen horse railways within the city limits, twenty two express companies, sixty nine banks, sixty eight hotels, American and European, of the first class. Sixty piers line up the North river, and seventy one on the East river. Each pier marks a separate street. There are thirty seven police station houses, seventy seven Sound and river steamers, eighteen of which cost upwards of $400,000; only six omnibus lines, where they were twenty three years ago; one hundred and two ocean steamers, twelve trunk lines of steam rail come to New York each of them with diverging branches. Eighty five tug boats pull the shipping to and fro. Twenty two thousand voyages are being made in and out of New York in one year. Twenty six thousand horses subsist upon the Island.

DIVORCE SUITS.—The New York Times has the following:

Very many of these divorce suits are conducted in a manner so exceedingly confidential that one of the parties most interested is not informed of the proceedings at all, until astounded by the presentation of the decree. We were cognizant of a case wherein an estimable lady, innocent of all wrong and ignorant even of any dissatisfaction on the part of her husband, parted with him affectionately at the steamboat dock as she started on a journey to see some friends, some hours after, in the privacy of her state room she found letters to examine a paper her husband had handed her at the last minute, and discovered it to be a copy of a decree of divorce rendered by an Illinois Judge. Before the steamboat had been six hours gone her late husband had married another woman. Numbers of these confidential divorces are obtained for unworthy purposes by the most rascally means.

JOHN FORSYTH, of the Mobile Ad vertiser wants the President to girdle up his loins for one fair stand up and conquering fight with the Radicals. Mr. Johnson has been trying to do that same for two years, but every time he has got on his pins he has been sent to grass by knock down arguments before he could get in a blow. At present his "daylights" are closed, and his head is in chancery, and it is rather a dull joke for his bottle-holders to shout to him to make a "fair stand up fight" of it.

PLUCKY.—A fellow named Sawyer New at tempted an outrage upon a young woman named Brown as she was passing through a piece of woods near East Medway (Mass.) recently. He sprang from the bushes upon her, but she resisted and escaped. On Sunday, when at church, she recognized her assailant in the porch, and he was arrested. On his neck were found the marks from the finger nails of the plucky girl.

CYRUS WAKEFIELD, of South Reading (Mass.), has offered to pay off the town debt—about sixty thousand dollars—and build a new and hand some town hall if the people will dispense with the name of South Reading—there being two other Readings besides—and call the town Wakefield.

About ten miles of the Pacific Railroad, in the most exposed places within the snow belt, has been roofed in.

The Democratic Bubble

The Salem Chronicle with great flourish of capital letters and typographical devices declares that if the payment of the national debt in greenbacks, according to the new Copperhead programme, is resisted, it is going for open, undisguised repudiation. Though the Chronicle may think that in stating the case in this manner it is offering alternatives, yet it is not so. Its two propositions are exactly alike. Practically, there is no difference between paying the debt in greenbacks and repudiating it. Adopt either plan, and the result is the same. Between these supposed alternatives there is no middle ground. But perhaps the Chronicle and its friends are aware of this fact, and probably their knowledge of it makes them the more anxious to carry out their great expansion and repudiation scheme. Are they not eagerly seizing this opportunity to press repudiation in a disguised form, believing that by cloaking its odious features they will be able to succeed? This probably is the true explanation. While these wise benefactors are about it they might as well also pay all the private debts in the country. On their scheme it would cost nothing to do it. There would be no objection to their paying the rebel debt in the same manner, but no doubt they will let this wait with a design of paying it afterwards in better money.

This scheme is a very like the great South Sea bubble which was formed and exploded in England in the early part of the 18th century. The national debt was to be paid and everybody was to grow rich by the inflation of the great paper bubble. All the funds were reduced to one, and all classes invested in South Sea stocks. These stock rose rapidly, and not only was the public debt to be paid, but every man and woman in the kingdom was to acquire sudden and permanent wealth. The expectation of great results was general, and the counsels of the prudent were derided by the multitude who with wild eagerness had embarked in the scheme. But at length, the bubble burst, and ruin and desolation followed the catastrophe. Tens of thousands were precipitated into the abyss of suffering, and unspeakable calamities fell upon the multitudes whom the shock had awakened from golden dreams. A scheme equally as baseless and equally certain (if adopted) to lead to calamitous results, is this paper money bubble invented by the Democracy. Flat repudiation would be less harmful than the adoption of this new South Sea scheme. Let us have no shams. If the Democracy are going to turn robbers, let them do it boldly. Away with such duperies as the authors of this transparent bubble would practice on the country.

B. P. and B. B.

The Copperhead organs continue their malicious slanders against the nation's defenders, asserting that our most eminent soldiers were secessionists at the outbreak of the rebellion. Stories of this kind are told of Generals Grant, Sheridan, Logan, Sickles and others who have won their country's gratitude by brave deeds. An Oregon editor has several times related imaginary stories intended to reflect upon the loyalty of Gen. Grant, and now Brick Pomeroy comes to his assistance with the following:

"It is interesting, to watch the career of public men, especially if their history be known. Take Grant for an illustration. Before the war he was nobody, so to speak. Played out for business, he sought a commission in the Confederate army, and was by R Fielding, of Arcuse Rock, warmly recommended to Gen. Claiborne F. Jackson, who promised Grant a commission in the Confederate army. At the earnest solicitation of General McClernand, he gave up this idea and accepted a commission from Lincoln—went into the so-called Union army, and—the balance of his history is familiar to all."

This bears a remarkable resemblance to the fabricated story lately published in Oregon concerning Gen. Grant, his father-in-law Major Dent, "an avowed secessionist," and the three brothers Dent, all of them "uncompromising Democrats." It seems that Brick P. and Beriah B. are in the same line of business. We are sure that B. B. has not seen the above from B. P.'s paper, or he would surely have transferred it to his own. For B. P.'s story is so much better, Democratically speaking, than that of B. B., that the readers of that class of papers, would greatly prefer it. At any rate, as they pay their money, they might take their choice. Speaking of the sons of Major Dent who are said to have been "uncompromising Democrats all through the war," we may remark that one of them, Capt. F. T. Dent was in Oregon when the rebellion began, and that he was anything but a Democrat. On the 28th of January, 1861, he wrote to a friend in this city: "I am for the Union, and shall give my sword to the last State that remains in it." And again on the 5th of September, 1861, he wrote from Fort Hoskins the following for publication:

Whereas certain covert enemies have associated my name with that of secessionist, therefore be it known that I recognize but two parties in the United States; those for and those against the country, the former as patriots and the latter as traitors

This does not bear much resemblance to the "uncompromising Democracy" of these days. The "covert enemies" of our soldiers whom Capt. Dent alluded to in 1861, are still at work, retailing lying slanders about them. A precious pair in this dirty employment are B. P. and B. B.

OF COURSE.—The Lafayette Courier publishes the bogus Harris letter, attributes it to Senator Harris, of New York, and holds the dirty lie up to view as proof that "all pure-minded men are dropping into our (Copperhead) ranks." This not is characteristic of the man who "runs" the Courier. A fellow who is "everything by turns and nothing long" who changes his politics because the party with which he has been associated would not give him office, may be expected to resort to tricks of this kind. They just suit his calibre and character.

Letter from Burnt River.

EXPRESS RANCH, Oct. 4, 1867.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Last night about dark two Indians came into the field at this place and stole two horses out of a band of five. They first drove the five across the river and then caught two of them. The others becoming frightened, as is supposed, came back, and the Indians were either afraid to follow them or had all they wanted. The last supposition, I think, is correct, as they went from this to the place adjoining, and left one of the horses they took from here and took another. After looking around and becoming satisfied that it was Indians that had got them, a party of three men started in pursuit, and tracked them to the road, when, of course, they could be tracked no further

You will begin to think pretty soon that we have got Indian on the brain, but if you could see the sight that I saw last Monday, you would think we had cause for alarm.

It does seem that this section of country is fated. Last spring they made several raids in here, but did not succeed in killing any person. After failing in several attempts, they finally withdrew and quiet seemed to reign, and we had come to the conclusion that if the company of soldiers on Willow creek were permitted to remain, we need have no more fears of the Indians. But as soon as they left, the red devils commenced with redoubled fury, and killing appears to be the order of the day.

THE SMALL INDUSTRIES.—The New York World, when urging upon the South the multiplication of its industrial occupations, gives the following impressive illustration of the value of cultivating the minor industries:

The Oneida Community, which, financially, is one of the most successful of the modern associations, made its way very feebly for years, and barely lived, so long as the members devoted themselves solely to farming. But when they commenced to can their fruit for market and to manufacture traps, satchels and other useful articles, they became prosperous and even wealthy. Those thrifty communities, the Shakers, at New Lebanon, are shrewd enough to cultivate small industries as well as broad acres.

The State Fair.

[FROM OUR OWN REPORTER]

SALEM, Oct 8, 1867.

STABLE FAIR

The day has been pleasant—cloudy, with occasional streaks of sunshine. The rain has ceased, though the weather seems unsettled. The officers and superintendents of departments have been very busy all day, arranging articles for exhibition as fast as they arrived.

Entries were being made until the office closed, at six P M No entries will be received after nine A. M., to-morrow.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, this morning, in the office, at ten o'clock, the following resolutions were adopted. 1st, That the Society offer a premium of a $10 bat and ball to the best base ball club in the State. 2d. A premium of a $10 bat to the best boys' base ball club in the State.

On motion of Mr. Waite, the rule relating to "Trials of Speed" was amended, as follows "That two or more horses may run together, but those who prefer may run singly, but against the best time made, provided they announce at the "Judges' Stand" the manner they propose to run, when called up, before starting."

The only trial of speed to-day was a trotting match of three year old stallions. Only three entries were made. The colt of M. A. Wallace won, making the mile in 3:34.

The accommodations for stock and all articles for exhibition are better than any previous fair, and the programme, so far, has been executed with promptness.

For the first time in the history of the Oregon Fairs, the reporters of newspapers have been provided with desks, writing material, etc., and are invited into the judges' stand to witness the races and trials of speed.

Corresponding Secretary Schwatka is entitled to the thanks of the newspaper corps, for convenience and information furnished.

The exhibition of

is better than usual, but is not equal to what it should be in this "land of big red apples." The fruit stands, however, are well filled with splendid collections of choice apples, pears, peaches, plums and grapes. There are also a few chestnuts, hickory nuts and butternuts, probably the first grown in the State. The

FLORAL

Exhibition is not large, but there are some splendid specimens, among which are four or five varieties of fuschias, (some of which are elegant), ice plant, dahlias, verbenas, myrtle, roses, a prince's feather of rare beauty, &c., &c.

A case of natural curiosities from the Sandwich Islands, exhibited by Mr. Patton, attracts considerable attention.

The display of paintings, drawings, Oregon shell work, &c., are pretty good, among which is a crayon picture, a copy of the beautiful painting, "The Better Land," which can scarcely be excelled anywhere. A wreath of those splendid sea mosses, gathered at Yaquina Bay, and the shell frame surrounding it made by a lady of Oregon, is very fine. Many more of these specimens are worthy of notice, but at present, the want of time prevents it.

The receipts of the first day at the gates and from entry fees, amounted to about $1,400, instead of $700, as was reported yesterday. The receipts of to-day from the same sources, amount to $1,590.

The number of entries made, up to this evening, reach 2,890.

The match game of base ball played to day on the plaza, by the boys, resulted as follows: The Tumwaters, of Oregon City, made 26 runs, and the Unions, of Salem, made 23 runs.

The four or five steam and horse power swings, afford much pleasure for the youngsters and others. An amusing thing occurred at one of them to day. A youth from the country who, unfortunately, had no "girl," stood by noticing his more fortunate companions swing, each with a lady by his side. When they got through, he approached one of his friends and said: "Jim, lend me your girl till I take a swing."

The scalp of an Indian is exhibited here bearing this inscription: 'Killed by a friendly Indian.' Queer friend, that!

Arrival from the New Kootenai Mines.—Full Particulars of the Massacre of the A'Hern Party.

[From the Lewiston Journal.]

Mr. G. A. Johnson arrived here last Monday from the new Kootenai Mines, having left there on the 18th ult. He says there was about 75 men in the diggings when he left, and a great many were leaving dissatisfied: while others had hopes that the mines would turn out good. Good prospects were found in some of the crevices on one creek. As high as twelve dollars per day has been panned out with a pan; but from the character of the gold obtained between high and low water mark (which was light scale gold) they had not prospect in the bed of the creek. He says the principal emigration to these mines is from the Blackfoot country, and that that country has been thoroughly prospected this season, more so than any previous.

THE INDIAN ATTACK.

The A'Hern party were attacked by a band of Indians while in camp, about five miles from Kootenai river, on Libby creek. The first alarm they had was the firing of guns close by on the evening previous, and a warning (from the same party who done the firing) that there were Blackfoot Indians around and for them to be cautious. The morning following there were two Indians in camp while they were packing up, and when the second attack was made the Indians said that the Blackfoot were after them and for them to run. Jos. A'Hern and Allen was first shot, and fell. The latter being shot through the heart, died instantly. A'Hern then told Moore to take his shotgun and go into the brush and do the best he could with it. He done so, Cavanaugh going with him. They had gone but a short distance when Moore was shot and killed. Cavanaugh kept on and nothing has since been heard of him. The boy, however, who was with this party of Indians, and who has since made his escape, says he don't know whether he was overtaken or not. The supposition is that he was wounded and died.

While the Indians were in pursuit of Moore and Cavanaugh, A'Hern made his escape in the brush, and when found he had lived on service berries and roots for twenty-two days. He was shot in the back, the ball entering near the back-bone and coming out at his right breast. The Indians buried Allen and Moore at the place where they were killed, and when the remains were found the wild animals had dug them up and eaten the flesh off their bones. The Indians took the horses, provisions and clothing, leaving but few tools. They then set fire to the woods.

CAPTURE OF THE INDIANS.

Between five and six weeks after the massacre the Indians were captured. The first two were captured near Fisherville by the miners, who were informed by the chief that they were in his camp. They were held in custody a few days at Fisherville, whereupon an express was sent to the New Mines to inform them of the capture, which express had not arrived up to the time Mr. Johnson left.

Three were captured at Bonner's Ferry, by John Walton. They were captured below the ferry about 60 miles. A chief came up there and informed Walton that some of the murderers were in his camp. Walton being alone, could do nothing towards arresting them.

In the meantime they were induced to go up to the ferry and deliver the plunder over to Walton, who improved the occasion by capturing them, and starting to take them to Libby creek or the new mines. Finding them troublesome, and meeting another party of whites on the road, it was decided to dispose of two of them, which they did by shooting one while trying to make his escape, and hanging the other.

It need not be inferred from the foregoing that the tribe of Indians in that country are hostile. The party that committed the murder were actuated to the deed by the prospect of plunder; the balance of their party will no doubt meet the fate of their associates, sooner or later. The chiefs of the tribe did all they could to assist the whites in capturing and bringing them to justice.

On the route, Mr Johnson met Ige, the criminal who recently escaped from our jail.

The Democratic Bubble.

The Salem Chronicle with great flourish of capital letters and typographical devices declares that if the payment of the national debt in greenbacks, according to the new Copperhead programme, is resisted, it is going for open, undisguised repudiation. Though the Chronicle may think that in stating the case in this manner it is offering alternatives, yet it is not so. Its two propositions are exactly alike Practically, there is no difference between paying the debt in green backs and repudiating it. Adopt either plan, and the result is the same. Between these supposed alternatives there is no middle ground. But perhaps the Chronicle and its friends are aware of this fact, and probably their knowledge of it makes them the more anxious to carry out their great expansion and repudiation scheme. Are they not eagerly seizing this opportunity to press repudiation in a disguised form, believing that by cloaking its odious features they will be able to succeed? This probably is the true explanation. While these wise benefactors are about it they might as well also pay all the private debts in the country. On their scheme it would cost nothing to do it. There would be no objection to their paying the rebel debt in the same manner, but no doubt they will let this wait with a design of paying it afterwards in better money.

This scheme is a very like the great South Sea bubble which was formed and exploded in England in the early part of the 18th century. The national debt was to be paid and everybody was to grow rich by the inflation of the great paper bubble. All the funds were reduced to one, and all classes invested in South Sea stocks. These stock rose rapidly, and not only was the public debt to be paid, but every man and woman in the kingdom was to acquire sudden and permanent wealth. The expectation of great results was general, and the counsels of the prudent were derided by the multitude who with wild eagerness had embarked in the scheme. But at length the bubble burst, and ruin and desolation followed the catastrophe. Tens of thousands were precipitated into the abyss of suffering, and unspeakable calamities fell upon the multitudes whom the shock had awakened from golden dreams. A scheme equally as baseless and equally certain (if adopted) to lead to calamitous results, is this paper money bubble invented by the Democracy. Flat repudiation would be less harmful than the adoption of this new South Sea scheme. Let us have no shams. If the Democracy are going to turn robbers, let them do it boldly. Away with such duperies as the authors of this transparent bubble would practice on the country,

B. F. and B. B.

The Copperhead organs continue their malicious slanders against the nation's defenders, asserting that our most eminent soldiers were secessionists at the outbreak of the rebellion. Stories of this kind are told of Generals Grant, Sheridan, Logan, Sickles and others who have won their country's gratitude by brave deeds. An Oregon editor has several times related imaginary stories intended to reflect upon the loyalty of Gen. Grant, and now Brick Pomeroy comes to his assistance with the following:

It is interesting, to watch the career of public men, especially if their history be known. Take Grant for an illustration Before the war he was nobody, so to speak Played out for business, he sought a commission in the Confederate army, and was by M. Fielding, of Arrow Rock, warmly recommended to Gen. Claiborne F. Jackson who promised Grant a commission in the Confederate army At the earnest solicitation of General McDonald, he gave up this idea and accepted a commission from Lincoln—went into the so-called Union army and—the balance of his history is familiar to all."

This bears a remarkable resemblance to the fabricated story lately published in Oregon concerning Gen. Grant, his father-in-law Major Dent, "an avowed secessionist," and the three brothers Dent, all of them "uncompromising Democrats." It seems that Brick P. and Horiah B. are in the same line of business. We are sure that B. B. has not seen the above from B. P.'s paper, or he would surely have transferred it to his own. For B P.'s story is so much better, Democratically speaking, than that of B. B., that the readers of that class of papers, would greatly prefer it. At any rate, as they pay their money, they might take their choice. Speaking of the sons of Major Dent who are said to have been "uncompromising Democrats all through the war," we may remark that one of them, Capt. F. T. Dent was in Oregon when the rebellion began, and that he was anything but a Democrat. On the 28th of January, 1861, he wrote to a friend in this city: "I am for the Union, and shall give my sword to the last State that remains in it." And again on the 9th of September, 1861, he wrote from Fort Hoskins the following for publication:

When our certain covert enemies have associated my name with that of secessionist, therefore be it known that I recognize but two parties in the United States; those for and those against the country, the former as patriots and the latter as traitors.

This does not bear much resemblance to the "uncompromising Democracy" of these days. The "covert enemies" of our soldiers whom Capt. Dent alluded to in 1861, are still at work, retailing lying slanders about them. A precious pair in this dirty employment are B. F. and B. B.

OF COURSE—The Lafayette Courier publishes the bogus Harris letter, attributes it to Senator Harris, of New York, and holds the dirty lie up to view as proof that "all pure-minded men are dropping into our (Copperhead) ranks." This act is characteristic of the man who "runs" the Courier. A fellow who is "everything by turns and nothing long" who changes his politics because the party with which he has been associated would not give him office, may be expected to resort to tricks of this kind. They just suit his calibre and character.

Letter from Burnt River.

EXPRESS RANCH, Oct. 4, 1867.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Last night about dark two Indians came into the field at this place and stole two horses out of a band of five. They first drove the five across the river and then caught two of them. The others becoming frightened, as is supposed, came back, and the Indians were either afraid to follow them or had all they wanted. The last supposition, I think, is correct, as they went from this to the place adjoining, and left one of the horses they took from here and took another. After looking around and becoming satisfied that it was Indians that had got them, a party of three men started in pursuit, and tracked them to the road, when, of course, they could be tracked no further.

You will begin to think pretty soon that we have got Indian on the brain, but if you could see the sight that I saw last Monday, you would think we had cause for alarm.

It does seem that this section of country is fated. Last spring they made several raids in here, but did not succeed in killing any person. After failing in several attempts, they finally withdrew and quiet seemed to reign, and we had come to the conclusion that if the company of soldiers on Willow creek were permitted to remain, we need have no more fears of the Indians. But as soon as they left, the red devils commenced with redoubled fury, and killing appears to be the order of the day.

THE SMALL INDUSTRIES.—The New York World, when urging upon the South the multiplication of its industrial occupations, gives the following impressive illustration of the value of cultivating the minor industries.

The Oneida Community, which, financially, is one of the most successful of the modern associations, made its way very feebly for years, and barely lived, so long as the members devoted themselves solely to farming. But when they commenced to can their fruit for market and to manufacture traps, satchels and other useful articles, they became prosperous and even wealthy. Those thrifty communities, the Shakers, at New Lebanon, are shrewd enough to cultivate small industries as well as broad acres.

BOSTON, Oct. 6—The reception of Sheridan to-morrow will probably excel any other demonstration ever witnessed in Boston.

Financial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Our bonds fell considerably in Europe. Reuter's telegrams manifest the utmost anarchy in disseminating reports prejudicial to our finances.

A rumor has gained credence that November's interest will be paid in greenbacks. An official reply has been made that long before bonds become due there is no doubt that greenbacks will be worth the same as gold. The first issue is not due in fourteen years. By that time specie payment will be resumed

The State Fair.

SALEM, Oct. 9.—The State Fair opened with small attendance on account of cloudy weather, but for the last two days they have been coming in freely

The show of stock is very fine. The pavilion well filled with works of art, and the Fair promises to be a success.

The match game of base ball between the Pioneers and Willamettes in days play, resulted in favor of the former club The Willamettes worked under great disadvantages in losing one of their men in the beginning of the game, who got wounded and retired.

The annual election of officers for the State Fair was held to-day, which resulted as follows: President, A. J. Dufur; Recording Secretary, E. H. Waite; Corresponding Secretary, A. C. Schwatka; Treasurer, J. H. Moores.

The State Fair.

[FROM OUR OWN REPORTER]

SALEM, Oct 8, 1867

STATE FAIR

The day has been pleasant—cloudy, with occasional streaks of sunshine. The rain has ceased, though the weather seems unsettled. The officers and superintendents of departments have been very busy all day, arranging articles for exhibition as fast as they arrived.

Entries were being made until the office closed, at six P. M. No entries will be received after nine A. M., to morrow.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, this morning, in the office, at ten o'clock, the following resolutions were adopted. 1st, That the Society offer a premium of a $40 bat and ball to the best base ball club in the State. 2d. A premium of a $10 bat to the best boys' base ball club in the State.

On motion of Mr. Waite, the rule relating to "Trials of Speed" was amended, as follows "That two or more horses may run together, but those who prefer may run singly, but against the best time made, provided they announce at the "Judges' Stand" the manner they propose to run, when called up, before starting."

The only trial of speed to-day was a trotting match of three year old stallions. Only three entries were made. The colt of M A. Wallace won, making the mile in 3 34.

The accommodations for stock and all articles for exhibition are better than any previous fair, and the programme, so far, has been executed with promptness.

For the first time in the history of the Oregon Fairs, the reporters of newspapers have been provided with desks, writing material, etc., and are invited into the judges' stand to witness the races and trials of speed.

Corresponding Secretary Schwatka is entitled to the thanks of the newspaper corps, for convenience and information furnished.

The exhibition of

is better than usual, but is not equal to what it should be in this "land of big red apples." The fruit stands, however, are well filled with splendid collections of choice apples, pears, peaches, plums and grapes. There are also a few chestnuts, hickory nuts and butternuts, probably the first grown in the State. The

FLORAL

Exhibition is not large, but there are some splendid specimens, among which are four or five varieties of fuschias, (some of which are elegant), ice plant, dahlias, verbenas, myrtle, roses, a prince's feather of rare beauty, &c., &c.

A case of natural curiosities from the Sandwich Islands, exhibited by Mr. Patton, attracts considerable attention.

The display of paintings, drawings, Oregon shell work, &c., are pretty good, among which is a crayon picture, a copy of the beautiful painting, "The Better Land," which can scarcely be excelled anywhere. A wreath of those splendid sea moses, gathered at Yaquina Bay, and the shell frame surrounding it made by a lady of Oregon, is very fine. Many more of these specimens are worthy of notice, but at present, the want of time prevents it.

The receipts of the first day at the gates and from entry fees, amounted to about $1,400, instead of $700, as was reported yesterday. The receipts of to-day from the same sources, amount to $1,500.

The number of entries made, up to this evening, reach 2,300.

The match game of base ball played to day on the plain, by the boys, resulted as follows: The Tumwaters, of Oregon City, made 26 runs, and the Unions, of Salem, made 23 runs.

The four or five steam and horse power swings, afford much pleasure for the youngsters and others. An amusing thing occurred at one of them to-day. A youth from the country who, unfortunately, had no "girl," stood by noticing his more fortunate companions swing, each with a lady by his side. When they got through, he approached one of his friends and said: "Jim, lend me your gal till I take a swing."

The scalp of an Indian is exhibited here bearing this inscription: 'Killed by a friendly Indian.' Queer friend, that!

Arrival from the New Kootenai Mines—Full Particulars of the Massacre of the A'Horn Party.

[From the Lewiston Journal.]

Mr. G. A. Johnson arrived here last Monday from the new Kootenai Mines, having left there on the 18th ult. He says there was about 75 men in the diggings when he left, and a great many were leaving dissatisfied: while others had hopes that the mines would turn out good. Good prospects were found in some of the crevices on one creek. As high as twelve dollars per day has been panned out with a pan; but from the character of the gold obtained between high and low water mark (which was light scale gold) they had not prospect in the bed of the creek. He says the principal emigration to those mines is from the Blackfoot country, and that that country has been thoroughly prospected this season, more so than any previous.

THE INDIAN ATTACK.

The A'Horn party were attacked by a band of Indians while in camp, about five miles from Kootenai river, on Libby creek. The first alarm they had was the firing of guns close by on the evening previous, and a warning (from the same party who done the firing) that there were Blackfeet Indians around and for them to be cautious. The morning following there were two Indians in camp while they were packing up, and when the second attack was made the Indians said that the Blackfeet were after them and for them to run. Joe. A'Horn and Allen was first shot, and fell. The latter being shot through the heart, died instantly. A'Horn then told Moore to take his shotgun and go into the brush and do the best he could with it. He done so, Cavanaugh going with him. They had gone but a short distance when Moore was shot and killed. Cavanaugh kept on and nothing has since been heard of him. The boy, however, who was with this party of Indians, and who has since made his escape, says he don't know whether he was overtaken or not. The supposition is that he was wounded and died.

While the Indians were in pursuit of Moore and Cavanaugh, A'Horn made his escape in the brush, and when found he had lived on service berries and moss for twenty-two days. He was shot in the back, the ball entering near the back-bone and coming out at his right breast. The Indians buried Allen and Moore at the place where they were killed, and when the remains were found the wild animals had dug them up and eaten the flesh off their bones. The Indians took the horses, provisions and clothing, leaving but few tools. They then set fire to the woods.

CAPTURE OF THE INDIANS.

Between five and six weeks after the massacre the Indians were captured. The first two were captured near Fisherville by the miners, who were informed by the chief that they were in his camp. They were held in custody a few days at Fisherville, whereupon an express was sent to the New Mines to inform them of the capture, which express had not arrived up to the time Mr. Johnson left.

Three were captured at Bonner's Ferry, by John Walton. They were captured below the ferry about 60 miles. A chief came up there and informed Walton that some of the murderers were in his camp. Walton being alone, could do nothing towards arresting them.

In the meantime they were induced to go up to the ferry and deliver the plunder over to Walton, who improved the occasion by capturing them, and starting to take them to Libby creek or the new mines. Finding them troublesome, and meeting another party of whites on the road, it was decided to dispose of two of them, which they did by shooting one while trying to make his escape, and hanging the other.

It need not be inferred from the foregoing that the tribe of Indians in that country are hostile. The party that committed the murder were actuated to the deed by the prospect of plunder; the balance of their party will no doubt meet the fate of their associates, sooner or later. The chiefs of the tribe did all they could to assist the whites in capturing and bringing them to justice.

On the route, Mr. Johnson met Ige, the criminal who recently escaped from our jail.

NEVER TOO LATE TO DO GOOD.—Persons who heretofore have not bought their Clothing, Dry Goods, etc., of KOHN & FISHEL, can yet do so, as it is never too late to be convinced that at KOHN & FISHEL'S the most fashionable Goods can be found, and at prices that defy competition. So, come one, come all, and each separately be convinced of the above facts

Buchtel's Photograph Gallery is the only establishment in Oregon that is thoroughly prepared to do all the different styles of work in the art. Photographs from card to life size. The new cabinet cards, &c., &c. Small pictures enlarged (retouched in India ink—painted in water-colors or oil by Mrs. S. J. Rumsey. Pictures that are fading can be reproduced in this way. All negatives taken in this gallery will be carefully preserved, and additional copies had. I have now on hand a very large collection of negatives, the names of which are recorded alphabetically in a book for that purpose that can be seen in the reception room.

RIOT.—The Unionist says "We understand that it is the intention of the State Agricultural Society to take such measures as they can, consistent with the powers and scope of their organization, to ferret out the truth or falsehood of the alleged frauds in wool packing in this State." The Society will confer a vast benefit upon the wool-growing interest, by pursuing this matter to the detection and exposure of the guilty parties As we stated some time ago, we believe that the frauds were mostly committed, not by the farmers, but by the dealers intermediate between the wool-growers and the California wholesale buyers. It would seem incredible that a farmer who is fixed in his habitation and whose future reputation and prosperity must depend upon his present fair dealing, should venture to practice such frauds as are sure to be detected upon the first attempt and to fasten upon him the character of a cheat and rogue. The fact is, very few farmers put up their wool in the packages which are shipped and in which the frauds were found to exist. They generally roll up and tie their fleeces and haul them off in that shape to the local buyers of wool, who are sometimes village merchants and sometimes mere traveling speculators. These latter assort the wool or mix it in shipping packages, and are probably the parties who are dishonest enough to load the packages with dirty logs and stones. Such practices are disgracefully dishonest and can only result in serious damage to one of the most important interests of the State. They should be exposed wherever found.

DISGRACEFUL.—Parties living on Second street, in the neighborhood of Yamhill, complain bitterly of the occurrence of a disgraceful row on Tuesday night between a couple of the nymphs du pave who inhabit the region between Taylor and Yamhill, usually called the "Court of Death." The damsels, it appears, live near each other, and there exists between them some business or other rivalry which has engendered a bad state of feeling, and Tuesday night it broke out in a regular eruption of profanity and disgraceful obscenity in which shanghies and disgusting wretches stood in their doors and for a considerable time poured out upon each other strains of filthy abuse, using epithets too foul to be repeated anywhere in the world outside of the "Court of Death." The colloquy was carried on in so loud a tone of voice that it was impossible to shut out the sound from the houses of families living in the neighborhood; and so, respectable men and women while in their own houses, were compelled to hear language so foul that it would have polluted the air of even a Five Points pot-house We are informed that a vigorous effort will be made to bring the parties to a fitting punishment.

LETTERS RETAINED FOR NON-PAYMENT OF POSTAGE.—Almost every day letters are dropped in the Postoffice here, to which no postage stamps are affixed. Such letters are, of course, not sent. Within the last few days, letters bearing the following addresses, were left in the office and are now held for the postage. They will be kept one week, subject to the claims of the writers: W. H. Archbold, Fort Steilacoom, W. T.; Richard Anderson, Fort Vancouver, W. T.; Dr. William Freeman, New York City; T. W. Brown, Vancouver, W. T.; Wm. THE STATE FAIR.—The following notes from our special reporter at the State Fair, was written, just after his arrival at Salem by the boat on Monday, and received by us yesterday:

The gates of the grounds were opened this morning. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the attendance is large. The receipts at the gate, and for entries to-day, amount to $300—a much larger sum than was received the first day last year. There is more machinery, implements, &c., now here than was exhibited last year. A large number of cattle, horses, sheep, etc., are coming. The usual amount of shows, swings, [illegible] wit, etc., are also here.

The Fair promises to be a success unless prevented by stormy weather.

Eighty passengers came up to-day on the steamer Echo.

ADDITIONAL FROM THE FAIR.—From the Record of yesterday we learn the following news concerning things at the State Fair, not mentioned by our correspondent:

At the meeting of the Board of Managers, six o'clock Wednesday evening was fixed on for the Annual Meeting of the Society.

On motion it was ordered that a premium of a $40 bat and ball be offered to the best Base Ball Club in this State.

On motion, a $10 bat was ordered to be offered as a premium for the best boys' Base Ball Club.

The rule relating to the trial of speed and bottom was amended, so that when the owner of two or more horses all prefer to have them together it can be done, while any horse can go singly, but against the best time made by the others; provided, it has been so announced at the judges' stand when called, before starting.

SOCIETY OF PIONEERS.—We learn from Mr. W. H. Gray, who came down from Salem yesterday, that at the preliminary meeting of the Pioneers of Oregon on Monday, Malcom Crawford, Sr., was chosen temporary President and W. H. Gray temporary Secretary. Messrs. W. H. Gray, David Leslie and Wiley Chapman were appointed a committee to draft a constitution. On Tuesday this committee reported a constitution, incomplete, which after some discussion was referred to a revising committee, of which Judge Deady was chairman. Another meeting was appointed for Wednesday evening for the purpose of completing the organization of the Society.

CONTRACT TO BUILD A LOCK.—Messrs. Simmons & Son, yesterday concluded a contract to build a lock for Messrs. Hawthorne & Lovejoy, at the mouth of the stream upon which stands the Brooklyn Mill. The work is to consist of parallel timber walls, of sawed timber, twelve feet high and sixty feet long, up and down stream, with flaring wings at either end, eighteen feet in length; making such wall, ninety-six feet long. The lock is to be furnished with the ordinary gates for inlet and outlet of water, so that boats can be floated through and up to the mill, for loading and unloading. We are not informed as to the cost of the works.

THE "FALKINBURG."—This bark will sail for San Francisco as soon as her cargo which is already engaged, can be got in. Messrs. Savier & Co. will ship by her 400 bbls of Imperial flour, in barrels, which will probably go either to New York or to the China market. Mr. Comstock of Springville, will send 500 tons of wheat; McCraken, Merrill & Co. will ship a lot of staves to go to the Sandwich Islands. Besides this, a deck load of lumber will be taken on at St. Helens, and probably a lot of Salmon at Astoria. The produce, however, will constitute the greater part of the cargo.

STAGE COMPANY INCORPORATED.—The Oregon and California Stage Company, since the transfer from Corbett to Carr, has been incorporated and the articles required by the laws of California were filed at San Francisco, on the 26th ult. The Marysville Appeal states the capital stock at $125,000. The Directors are Jesse D. Carr, Wm. H. Hall, A. G. Thomas, and Elijah Corbett. The new company assumes the route for the present under agreement. The agents, whether local or traveling, so far as we know them, are men of long experience in the staging business

JUSTICES' COURT—ANDERSON, JUSTICE.—In the matter of the State vs. John Brown and George Smith, accused of larceny by stealing a gun and bowie-knife from the California Hotel, the charge against George Smith was dismissed for the purpose of making him a witness for the prosecution. After an examination of the charge, John Brown was held to answer in the sum of $250. Smith was held in the sum of $100 to appear before the next grand jury as a witness. In default of bail, both the men were committed.

PORTLAND SHORTLY AHEAD.—Mr. W. K. Witherell received a dispatch from Salem last evening stating that the game between the Pioneers and the Willamettes, yesterday resulted in 22 runs for the Pioneers and 25 for the Willamettes. Wonder if there is not some easier game at which the Willamettes could play—say, pins, or marbles!

J. L. Daly vs. Bennett & White; argued and submitted to the court.

ANNEXATION.—The Lewiston Journal of the 3d has the following:

Pursuant to the call in last week's issue, a number of our citizens met at the court house on Thursday evening, 27th ult., for the purpose of considering the proposed annexation of Northern Idaho to Washington Territory. The meeting was organized by electing Dr. Kelley Chairman, and S. M. Gillingham Secretary. Mr. Dugan, of Walla Walla, was called for, and in an able manner addressed the audience at some length. In the course of his remarks Mr. D. pronoued some very plausible reasons in favor of annexation. The people of Washington Territory were in favor of annexation, and the advantages to be obtained from such a union would be immense. The taxes could be materially lessened by such a result. He thought that a new territory formed out of Northern Idaho and Eastern Washington Territory would be a good Territory geographically, but the question would be whether the population and resources would support it. The meeting was also ably addressed by Messrs. S. W. Anderson, S. S. Penn and W. W. Thayer. all of whom presented sound arguments in favor of annexation,—but only as a means to finally becoming, (in connection with Eastern Washington Territory,) a territory of ourselves. Messrs. E. P. Dugan, W. W. Thayer, S. S. Penn of Idaho Co., and Wm. H. Hudson, of Shoshone Co., were appointed a committee to confer with the people of Washington Territory in regard to the matter.

DR HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.—The operation of this palatable remedy upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties, and it is recommended to mothers, enfeebled by the cares and duties of maternity, as the safest and best tonic they can probably use In all the ills of female life it will be found eminently useful, and elderly persons will derive much more benefit from it than from ordinary stimulants —Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere

☞ We have but little confidence in the trumpet tongued statements of the proprietors of advertised medicines generally, but we are forced to concur in the opinion, uniformly expressed by all who have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, that it is a very valuable article, and one that it would be well for every household to have at hand, in case of bruises, scalds, burns, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera, fever and ague, and the host of diseases, external and internal, which it is adapted to cure or alleviate No article of medicine ever attained to such unbounded popularity and extensive diffusion. It has penetrated to every part, even the most remote, of the known world, bearing with it its healing influences more potent than those of "balm from Gilead" or "the breat" We are informed by our principal druggists, that they sell more of this article for exportation than any or all others, and that the demand is constantly increasing.—Salem Observer.

Equinoctial.

The sun of life has crossed the line,
The summer-shine of long, thoroughly light
Faded and failed—till, where I stand
'Tis equal day and equal night

One after one he dwindling hours
Youth's glowing hopes have dropped away
And scarcely barely leave the gleam
That coldly scores a winter's day.

I am not crying I am not ill
The flesh runs on the sunset calm
Pulling and deepening each vessel
Meet midway with a solemn charm

One side I see the summer fields
Not yet disrobed of all the regreens;
While westerly along the hills
Flame the first hints of forty sheen

Ah! middle point where cloud and storm
Make battle ground of this my life
Where even matched, the night and day
Wage round me their despiteful strife

I bow me to the threatening gale;
I know, when that is over, set
Among the peaceful harvest days,
An Indian summer comes at last!

A Cingalese Drama

A gentleman who some years since attended the wedding of a high caste lady in the Island of Ceylon, gives the following sketch of a rather unique dramatic performance which was provided as a portion of the entertainment for the happy occasion.

The play was performed by a company of Malabars who had been especially engaged at considerable expense, and to us it was most interesting, as we had never previously witnessed a dramatic performance of the kind. We must remind our readers that the actors performed in the grounds, walking before the verandah of the house, and each performer carried a lighted torch made from the center of a dried cocoanut leaf. The female characters were performed by men, and each actor informed the audience in verse, declaimed in a singing tone, what personage he represented. The dresses were rich and appropriate and glistened with much jewels, whilst the arms, ankles and throats of the lady (?) actresses were loaded with gilt bangles, anklets and necklaces.

First the queen came, attended by her confidante, and her majesty (who could not conceal her huge whiskers) informed the audience that she was in an interesting situation, and that the king, her spouse, had been murdered by his adikar, who now wished to wed her and thus obtain a claim to the throne, but that she loathed the man who had murdered her beloved lord. As soon as her majesty had concluded this doleful narration, a buffo actor, stuffed and padded in a most grotesque manner (not unlike Falstaff), came forward and turned into ridicule all that the queen had been saying, ending by declaring that all women, both of high and low degree, loved a dead husband only until they could get a living one. This was received with shouts of laughter, which had no sooner subsided than the buffo passed a bag to the guests, saying what would be equivalent to "largest nobles," and those who gave the largest donations received the lowest salaam.

The confidante then stated her woes and love for the accused adikar, her disbelief that he had murdered the King, and her firm conviction that the Queen had instigated the murder for the sole purpose of marrying her beloved. The buffo again came forward and enacted the same scene, which he repeated after the character had finished his singing recital. There were but six characters in this play, namely—the Queen, her confidante, her nurse, the adikar, his brother and the buffo; and as it would be tedious to give the play, we will say that it was concluded to the satisfaction of all parties, as it was proved that the King was not murdered by the adikar, but had tumbled headforemost into a tank and was drowned, whereupon the Queen agreed to wed the adikar, her confidante to transfer her affections to that gentleman's brother, and the buffo said that he must follow the example set him by his superiors and marry the nurse; although she was old, ugly and ill-tempered, but then she had influence at court, plenty of money, and an old woman could not live forever, and as soon as she was dead he would come and offer his bewitching person and purse to the youngest, most fascinating, highest caste damsel present.

The buffo concluded by saying, that from all he had seen, he felt that the hearts of women were like the flower that opens to receive every insect that lights upon it; and as the fair sex was known to be fickle and deceitful, he wondered why man still persisted in loving them, and the only excuse he could make for a man loving or marrying a pretty woman was, that he could not help it. The characters were effectively supported; and although the singing declaration did not please an European ear, the novelty of the scene was amusing, especially as each actor appeared to be absorbed in the character he represented, and as they became excited, wildly waving their torches to and fro above their heads, keeping time to their recitations.

At the conclusion of the play the guests were invited to partake of another feast, and the ladies were requested to inspect the nuptial chamber. The walls and ceilings of this apartment were hung with white cloth, on which were painted strange devices, of animals, trees and flowers, while the room itself was brilliantly illuminated by numerous lamps suspended from the ceiling, and as they were supplied with cocoa nut oil the effluvium was most overpowering. On a table were displayed the jewels of the bride, and those which had been presented to her by her relations and friends, and a carved ebony chest, filled with new wearing apparel, excited the admiration, if not the envy, of the fair gazer. The drapery of the bed was of pure white figured muslin, which was figured with slender shreds of young palm leaves, and to each corner of the couch bunches of delicate and fragrant flowers were attached. A scroll written in Singalese was affixed to the head of the bed, on which was inscribed, "May your off-spring be numerous."

A SINGULAR COMBAT.—Recently a farmer out West heard loud talking and angry words bandied about among his dunghill fowls, and being a man of peaceable disposition, now as inclined to countenance family quarrels, and withal being a little curious to know the cause of the disturbance, and who was in the right and who was in the wrong, with divers other causes him thereunto moving, he leisurely bent his course towards the scene of squalling and confusion aforesaid, which, as is recorded in the cause of Butlum vs. Boatum, was very natural for a man so to do." Arrived in the vicinity of the disturbance above particularly referred to, he observed his dunghill cock, who is a great pugilist, and in the enjoyment of all his physical strength, engaged in mortal combat with a striped snake of about 18 or 20 inches in length, the cock to all appearances having the decided advantage over his more wily, though less nervous adversary, dealing his blows in quick succession, employing alternately his bill and spurs with true pugilistic skill and science. But the cunning serpent, well aware that the victory must decide against him in fair combat, brought into requisition a portion of that innate cunning for which that reptile has been celebrated from the beginning of the world to the present time; and seizing his antagonist by the thigh, in the rear, completely secured himself from any further danger from him. Thus situated, to cock very naturally thought his only "safety was in flight;" he accordingly "cleaved the air majestically with his wings," the snake keeping fast the hold, and dangling like a tagluck underneath, until the cock, overcome by fatigue, alighted on a neighboring apple tree. The snake immediately coiled his tail around a branch of the tree, and the cock again attempted flight, but he could scarcely clear the limb, from which he hung with his head downwards, making every effort to escape, but all in vain, until the farmer came to his assistance, killed the snake and set him a liberty.

DO THE LADIES INSURE?—The New York correspondence of September 3d, of the Louisville Courier says:

The papers are again discussing the intemperate appetite of New York ladies. Even that gallant old sheet, the Sunday Times, has followed in the lead of the censorious Round Table, and devoted an editorial to the subject. This animadversion is of little avail and probably uncalled for, though I was reminded of it a few days ago by a little by play at Delmonico's. A party lunching near a window having disposed of a bountiful supply of sparkling Moselle, Vin Delmonico, etc., one of the ladies instead of leaving by the door, attempted to walk out of the window. Her escort drew her back, and with a flushed face hurried her away. A gentleman near might have been heard to say "Poor thing, she isn't well, and needed air, she has taken cold probably from drinking out of a damp goblet."

The vulgar rendering of the motto of the Order of the Garter, "Evil be to him that evil thinks," is simply absurd. In fact there is no such word as hons. Honni, as it ought to be written, is not a noun, but the past participle of the verb honnir, to disgrace, revile, curse. The true signification of Honni soit qui mal y pense, as King Edward—if he ever said it—must have meant would be, "He be d—d that thinks any wrong of it.—Notes and Queries.

The Knoxville Whig says "A Democratic army of 53,000 militia enslaved Tennessee in 1861. A Republican militia of 1,700 established her freedom in 1867."

An American Fashion Congress Proposed

[From the New York World.]

Jennie June, a standard authority on fashions, has appealed in her latest correspondence on the subject, for a Congress of American women to decide what style of dress American women shall wear. Ten years ago the writer made the same proposition. She has even better reasons for repeating it at this time, for her country women were never so completely under foreign dominion in the matter of dress as they are to-day. The attempt to which have been made to institute several varieties of the ungainly "Bloomer" costume in place of the prevailing draperies, have failed, as they deserved, to obtain general recognition. They would probably have failed to obtain it, even if the costume had been graceful, for the reason that those who adopted and recommended were eccentric and not very refined women with out the prestige of a high social position, to whom nobody cared to ape as exceptional disciples. The only individual example American women have conscientiously conscribed to follow in selecting their apparel, has been that of an Empress. But in this respect they have been within the last three years, disgracefully cheated. Since the Empress Eugenie invented or revived crinoline, she has invented nothing. The French fashions, which all the world continues to pattern after, are now, and for a long time have been set by the demim monde—the worse than demi monde—of the French Capital. The short dresses, all the latest and most extraordinary novelties of street and drawing room costume were originated by one, or a coulare, of the Parisian lorettes. Tilting hoops were invented either by them or the devil, whom the amiable Eugenie is not accused of having relations with. All these things were as instantly the rage in the Atlantic cities, after the patterns and descriptions of them reached our milliners' rooms, as crinoline was, and in a fortnight afterwards the clats of the entire country were publicly promenading in them.

Although it is granted that most of the Parisian styles of garb, no matter by whom first worn are novel and striking in themselves, it is not true that they are usually suited to what are vulgarly called the "style of beauty" of American females, or to the American climate. It must be said, too, that French fashions, if they had been always literally adopted by milliners here, would have shocked the not yet utterly depraved taste of our ladies. As they are often modified and varied by milliners to conform to that taste, and as American ladies who appear abroad in them as modified are called, even in Paris, the best dressed women in the world, it appears that we have—doing series at present only in the mental capacity of toning down foreign exaggerations and monstrosities of apparel—a fund of taste and inventiveness which, applied to a home dress reform, might render the effort successful. New York city, as the world admits, is destined eventually, when the Pacific Railroad is completed and the tides of foreign trade and commerce set more directly hitherward from west and east, to become the chief financial centre of the two continents. It should also be the centre of taste, fashion and social common sense. It is not extravagance in dress that requires to be lightened, it is the cultivation of simplicity and beauty and propriety in dress that women are called upon to encourage.

PUNS.—I have mentioned puns. They are, I believe, what I have denominated them—the wit of words. They are exactly the same to words that wit is to ideas, and consist in the sudden discovery of relations in language. A pun to be perfection in its kind should contain two distinct meanings, the one, common and obvious, the other, more remote; and in the notice which the mind takes of the relation between these two sets of words, and in the surprise which that relation excites, the pleasure of a pun consists. Miss Hamilton, in her book on education, mentions the instance of a boy so very neglectful that he could never be brought to read the word paternoster, but whenever he met with it, he pronounced it partridges. A friend of the writer observed to her that it could hardly be a mere piece of negligence, for it appeared to him that the boy, in calling them partridges, was making game of the patriarchs. Now, here are two distinct meanings contained in the same phrase, for to make game of patriarchs is to laugh at them; or to make game of them, is, by a very extravagant and laughable sort of ignorance of words, to rank them among pheasants, partridges and other such delicacies, which the law takes under its protection, and calls game; and the whole pleasure derived from this pun consists in the sudden discovery that two such different meanings are referable to one form of expression. I have very little to say about puns, they are in very bad repute, and so they ought to be. The wit of language is so miserably inferior to the wit of ideas, that it is very deservedly driven out of good company. Sometimes, indeed, a pun makes its appearance, which seems, for a moment, to redeem its species; but we must not be deceived by them; it is a radically bad race of wit. By unremitting persecution it has been at last put under, and driven into cloisters—whence it must never again be suffered to emerge into the light of the world.—Sydney Smith.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF LEGS.—The New York Sun says:

Some enthusiastic Frenchman once declared the human leg to be the most philosophical of all studies. "Show me the leg," said Gautier, "and I will judge the mind," and it does seem quite as natural that the limb should indicate the disposition as the shade of hair should indicate the temperament. What shall, for instance, does an obese limb betray! What a shrew is the possessor of a limb like a walking stick! But what a gentlewoman is she of the arched instep, the round ankle and the graceful pedestal, swelling to perfection and modulating to lightness! What dogged obstinancy the stumpy leg, with the knotted calf exhibits! What an irresolute soul does the lanky limb betray! How well the strong ankle intimates the firm purpose—how the flat ankle reveals the vacant mind!

Young men about to marry—observe.

The dark girl with a large leg will become fat at thirty, and the abed reading novels till mid-day. The brunette with slender limbs, will worry your soul out with jealousy. The olive skinned maid with a pretty rounded leg will make you happy. The blonde with large limbs will degenerate at thirty-five into the possession of a pair of ankles double the natural size, and afflicted with rheumatism. The fair haired damsel with thin limbs will get up at half past five A. M. to scold the servants, and will spend her nights talking scandal over tea. The light, rosy girl, with a steady, muscular, well turned leg, will be just the girl for you. If you can find a red-haired girl, with a large limb, pop the question at once. The short lady should always possess a slender limb, the tall lady should possess a large and ample one. These are the rules to observe in making your choice! We do not make them, and we merely announce them for the benefit of mankind.

No doubt these hints are reliable, and the prevailing fashions make them quite practicable.

When Dr. Day was president of Yale College, a party went out with him once to practice surveying, and the President felt gratified with the intelligence evinced. Next one of the party was examined. "How would you go to work to survey a piece of land?" The student hesitated. "If a man were to come to you and wished to have his farm surveyed what would you do?" "I—I—I should advise him to get somebody else to do it, sir."

The following is from an editor in Kansas:

"Come to Kansas. We have a stalk in our sanctum measuring fifteen feet and one inch. We asked the farmer who brought it in if he hadn't any larger. 'Yes,' said he but do you suppose I'd be fool enough to bring my best corn to a printer when it is not nearly grown?" We had to open our skylight to let the tassels out.

BRONCHITIS OR CHRONIC SORE THROAT—It is attended with irritation of the bronchial tubes which convey the air we breathe into the lungs. This irritation produces sore throat, hoarseness, coughing and sometimes spitting of matter streaked with blood. If it is neglected it will extend down to the lungs and settle into confirmed consumption. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will be found a most valuable remedy for curing this disease and preventing its running into Consumption.—Sold by dealers in family medicines generally.

THIS GATE WILL BE ON EXHIBITION AT THE

When the Rights to the Counties of MARION, POLK, LINN, LANG, BENTON, JACKSON, JOSEPHINE, DOUGLAS, UMPQUA, COOS and CURRY will be offered for sale by my Agent.

The advantages of this gate may be summed up in this brief statement:

1st—Resting on a perfect balance and resting on a caster near the base, and between two posts, as may be seen in the diagram, there is no tendency to range the posts from a perpendicular; it thus avoids the inconvenience so often experienced with the swing gate that of dragging on the ground after a frost.

2d—It opens vertically and out of the way of the snow, mud and stones, requiring no additional space when open.

3d—It admits of as secure and cheaper fastening, while it is also a stronger gate than any other of the same amount of lumber.

4th—It can be easily opened from a carriage without halting the horse or getting out, and even the field gate, without levers can be opened easily by any one on horseback and without leaving a team.

5th—It is not only the most convenient gate, but can be made 50 per cent cheaper than any other kind now in use.

CARD.

DR. BARLOW J. SMITH'S WATER CURE AND Phrenological Institute, 627 Sacramento Street, San Francisco. This is the only Regular Water Cure in Francisco, where all curable diseases are treated without drugs. Dr. Smith was the first to establish a water cure on this coast, based upon the theory and practice of the New York Hydropathic College.

We have a truly healthful boarding place for men, women and children, and our prices are moderate.

The Phrenological organs plainly indicate the diseases to which any person, male or female, is predisposed.

Put this card in your hat, and when you come to San Francisco, call on Dr. Smith. He will give you consultation and a phrenological examination in regard to health. It will cost you nothing and may save you months and years of ill health and "bad luck."

Dr. Smith gives free lectures to gentlemen every Friday evening, on subjects pertaining to health, at his Phrenological Hall, 627 Sacramento Street.

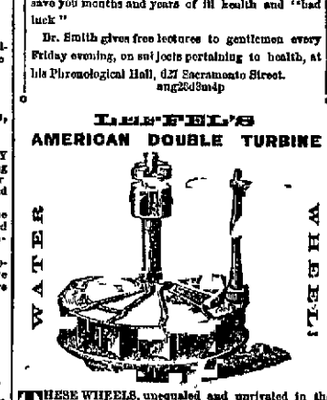
AMERICAN DOUBLE TURBINE



THESE WHEELS, unequaled and unrivaled in the United States or the world, have been fully tested on this coast, more than forty being in use at this date, driving all kinds of machinery, Saw Mills, Flour Mills, Quartz Mills, Woolen Factories, &c., &c.

On account of the late calamity to the OREGON IRON WORKS we have lost a few Wheels, but of those sizes we have a good supply, therefore those contemplating using this Wheel need not be disappointed, but forward their order at once, accompanied with the CASH, which we note need more than the Wheels.

We cheerfully refer to all using our wheels, and are assured that all will affirm that our wheels accomplish all and even more than we claim for them. Address
